John/Brett-

Hello! I hope that you both are doing well. It has been a while since we last talked, but I wanted to share something with you. A good friend of mine, Andy Irwin, recently accepted a new job with a bank in South Africa. He moved about 5 weeks ago and left his wife, Natalie, and two boys behind to finish school, baseball, pack, etc. Naturally, it's quite a change to move from Charlotte to South Africa and there is a lot to deal with. I think between all of the end-of-school stuff, a very busy baseball schedule, farewell parties and immigration issues, Natalie was beginning to feel a bit overwhelmed. Last night I was sitting with her at a little league game and she was describing the scene from earlier in the day when the movers arrived. She had not gotten much sleep after a late night at our house for a party in her honor, so she was tired and not quite ready for the packers. However, she said that all changed when the All American Moving crew arrived. She said that they were very professional and accommodating and couldn't have been nicer. Not one for exaggerating, Natalie even described the crew leader (unfortunately, I cannot remember her name) as her angel. Of course, I then told her about my connection to you guys and your company and how much I enjoyed working with you.

Anyway, I thought you should know how much she appreciated the job your folks were doing. She does not know that I'm contacting you, but I wanted to say thanks for taking care of them. It's making her challenge a little but more manageable.

Matt
